Distinguished Visitors.

The Cottage City brought up on her last trip a number of the distinguished men of the country, who are making a tour of Southeastern Alaska, seeking information regarding this part of the country they represent. The party consisted of Speaker of the House Joseph G. Cannon, Congressman J. C. McAndrews and H. C. Rodenberg of Illinois; Congressman James A. Tawney, of Minnesota; Congressman H. C. Landis, of New Jersey; Congressman H. C. Adams, of Wisconsin; Congressman J. A. Belder, of Ohio; Senator J. A. Hendon, of Indiana; Senator Piles and Congressman Humphrey, of Washington, and Congressman J. C. Sibley, of Pennsylvania. Also, Henry Kasson, sergeant-at-arms of the House, L. A. Busby, secretary to the speaker, Alexander McDowell, clerk of the House, a number of wives of the distinguished gentlemen and Mr. Pharo, manager of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co. They arrived at 6:30 p. m. Thursday, and for two hours were shown about town, viewing with interest the totem poles, the big logs in the boom, the big sticks of timber on the yard at the mill, the marble from Hann Island and the many curios about town. "You have a country of great future possibilities," said Speaker Cannon to the SENTINEL man; "your timber beats anything I have ever seen; your atmosphere is pure and invigorating and your rich scenery beggars description." All of the visitors were a unit on the proposition that the cable should be laid from Juneau via Wrangell to Ketchikan, and that a channel should be cut through the Dry Straits in the interest of commerce. Every member of the party evidenced a lively interest regarding local conditions, and SENTINEL believes that good will result from their visit. They left for the west at midnight, intending to visit Juneau, Skagway, Whitehorse and Sitka.

Apple trees are in full bloom.
Ernest Specht was a passenger home on the Seattle.

The Helen Payne was up from Lake Bay, Sunday.

Guy Carson has about the noblest wagon in town.

Mrs. Mary Willson went to Juneau on the Cottage City.

Ex-Gov. Swineford was a passenger down on the Humboldt, last week.

The berry crop will soon be upon us, and there will be an abundance for all.

Miss Lula McGee has gone to Loring to remain with Mrs. Patching for the summer.

Great big good-natured Harry Raymond has been with us again a portion of the past week.

Mrs. Fred Wigg picked the first ripe blue berries of the season, Saturday last in East Wrangell.

Town Trustee Inman has received his commission at last, but no instructions as the mode of procedure.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Rosenthal have a splendid garden and their radishes melt in one's mouth. Thanks.

Messrs. Haught and West went over to St. John's, last week, and brought in a supply of that famous Zarembo water.

George Looker and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard came up from Bell Island, Saturday, and spent Sunday with Wrangell friends.

Salmon berries are reported quite plentiful, and are already ripening rapidly—more than a month earlier than last year.

Last Sunday was Children's Day, and the little folks carried out good programs and did themselves credit at both of our churches.

How about celebrating the 4th of July? June is passing rapidly, and the National Day will be here before we know it.

Mr. E. Goodwin was so unlucky as to get a scale of steel in his eye last week, that caused him considerable pain and inconvenience.

Mrs. Thos. Dalgity and her two boys left by the Jefferson, Sunday morning, to join Mr. Dalgity at Astoria, where he has a permanent position.

The Catherine M. was in from Point Ellis, last week, and reports the cannery rapidly getting things in readiness for a good pack this year.

Parties are now experimenting on the proposition of a pete supply for Wrangell, and believe that immense beds of it lie right here at our door.

Mr. Adolph Stark had the Missionary Herald plant shipped to Douglas, last week, where he will use it in connection with mission work he is doing there.

Mrs. F. E. Cagle, of Ketchikan, came up on the Seattle for a visit with Wrangell friends. She is looking well and reports Mr. Cagle in good health.

Julius Louison and wife came up on the Jefferson and stopped over till the Cottage to visit the family of Collector Bronson, old acquaintances of Mrs. L.

Mayor Jensen has received his credentials as honorary commissioner from this section to the Lewis and Clark exposition, and congratulations are again in order.

Dr. E. I. Green, our resident dentist, returned home on the last down trip of the Mount Royal from Telegraph Creek, where he had quite an extensive practice for a few days.

Deputy marshal Grant, his daughter Mrs. Nielsen, and son Brigham, Capt. Johnson and wife, had the Patience C. take them over to Mill Creek, Friday, where they enjoyed a pleasant outing, returning Saturday.

Look Out FOR FIRE!

Everything is as dry as powder and will go off with but a meagre spark. Therefore be constantly on the alert. If this dry weather continues, the Town Council should pass stringent measures prohibiting shooting fire-crackers, bombs, and all combustibles on the streets and among the buildings. We can't afford to take any desperate chances.

Chief clerk Whiting writes Postmaster Worden that while the Spokane is on an excursion boat, she will carry mail both ways between Seattle and Southeastern Alaska points.

We have had quite a notable personage in our midst the past ten days. Mr. H. Austin, whom we mentioned last week as being on his way up the Stikine, is an ex-governor of Minnesota.

At the regular meeting of Stikine Tribe No. 5, Inup, O. R. M., June 6, the following officers were elected: C. M. Coulter, Prophet; Wm. E. Lloyd, Sachem; H. D. Campbell, S. S.; Frank Goodrich, J. S.; A. V. R. Snyder, C. of P.; J. E. Worden, K. of W.; J. G. Grant, C. of W.; E. H. Lyons, Trustee. Installation is the first meeting in July.

The Clatawa left for the West Coast Prince of Wales, Monday. She makes her first trip to Sitka and Copper Mountain. The Clatawa will probably make another trip, when Capt. Orr will replace her with a faster and more commodious boat—a first-class steamer in every particular, both as to freight and passengers.

Gov. Brady has a number of disciples at this place—"cabbagically" speaking. Last week hundreds of good, healthy plants were put out, Fred Lynch leading the bunch with 250 and Marshal Grant a close second. Wheat, oats and barley are not looking well, but the humble bee crop promises a full crop.

That whole-souled, jolly fur buyer, George Simmons and his daughter Rose, were passengers up on the Seattle. They will visit points above and then return for a visit with Wrangell friends and take a trip up the river and over to the Prince of Wales.

Messrs. E. West and P. Haught have established a tannery at this place, under the name of the "Wrangell Robe Tannery," and are prepared to tan your furs as satisfactorily as it can be done anywhere. They are at Mr. Haught's building in East Wrangell.

"Uncle Jim" Hurley got in a raft of logs for the mill, last week; also new piling for Bell's wharf.

Wm. Fowler has closed down the Central Restaurant in the Wrangell hotel building.

George Whitman, of Klawack, came up from Ketchikan, last week, and went home on the Clatawa.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Boyd Young came over from Shakan, in the Mabel, last Thursday, returning Friday.

"You never miss the water till the well runs dry." Likewise the electric lights till the works shut down.

The steamer Mabel and schooner Port Adair were in port last week. Their operators have been down to Ann Creek getting things in readiness to begin salting salmon in dead earnest when the season opens.

Miss Pauline Snyder, after spending several months with her sisters and brothers in Oregon is at home again, having arrived on the Jefferson. Although Pauline loves her sisters dearly, she says "there's no place like home," and Wrangell is a paradise.

From a Wandering Blue Nose.

Victor, Colorado, May 25, 1905.
Ed. SENTINEL.—I intended to drop my anchor in Wrangell harbor before this time, but got sidetracked in the Rockies. I went to work as a mule on a tramway. All I had to do was to push a ton of ore 500 feet and hurry back to do the same thing over again. But that is nothing when you get used to it; it is just like shooting fish in the old county. (Ask Johnnie Grant how that is done.)

There are some very high hills here, so high that it takes two looks and a hell to see the tops of some of them, and the air is so light that the school children have to carry bricks in their pockets to hold them down.

Lots of the yellow stuff is hauled in this camp. Every day the mine in which I work hoists from 400 to 500 tons of ore that assays from $50 to $100 per ton, and there are several in the camp that beat that.

Bob Reid used to tell me when I was in Wrangell that the Americans came there and chased the Swedes out; and then the Blue Noses came and tried to run the Americans off. But you should see the Fish Eaters here; the bows of earth is alive with them, and on fish-day the men that run the market has to keep a man at the door with a six-shooter in each hand to keep them back, as they would pack the market off after the fish are all gone, because it smelt so natural to them.

I just read the SENTINEL this evening and hope to continue to do so, as I have a warm spot in my heart for Wrangell and its people, and as it is the only way I can get the news. I get a letter from J. C. occasionally, but this is the way he writes: "Father-in-law, I wish you were here; I have a ton of coal to deliver for Benson and another for Hamilton, on Mount Lewis. Mary will have a steak for dinner, tonight." Mary's part of it is right; but I don't like the looks of that automobile of Johnnie's.

Don't fail to send the paper, and let me know when my subscription is due.

With regards to all, I am

Yours truly,

Carl H. Mesno.

Mr. W. A. Landille of Washington, D. C., agent Bureau of Forestry, arrived from the westward on the Humboldt, last week. As his work will be in the section for some time, he will make Wrangell his headquarters. The Alexander Archipelago forest reserve comes under his jurisdiction, and he informs a reporter that the administration of the law regarding the reserves will be observed and enforced, though owing to conditions there may be a modification of some of the rules.

Last Thursday Messrs. J. B. Heckman, Fred Patching and Harry Rabler came up from Loring with the Keweenaw to get some supplies from the Point Highland cannery. Henry said Wrangell looked mighty good to him; and he looked natural to Wrangellites. Watchman Smith was in town Saturday kicking because, he said, they came into the bay, and without his consent hitched onto the Ella Bonfille and Hattie Gline and silently towed them away.

A piano came to town last week for Mrs. Lemieux.

It is generally safe to judge a man's brains by the action of his tongue.

No; Mr. J. B. Duke did not get his new $5,000.00 home by saving cigarette coupons.

Don't worry about your lack of fortune. John W. Gates has tonsillitis and John D. Rockefeller dyspepsia.

Cordova, the eloping Jersey minister, says he does not care for himself. That makes it nearly unanimous.

Dress may not make the man, but it has succeeded in acquiring considerable prominence among the ladies.

"Grim-visaged war" in the far East does not stay in one place long enough for its front to get old enough to wrinkle.

Simultaneously women were caught in a poolroom raid in both New York and Chicago. This deprives both towns of a chance to boast.

The paper trust is making a determined effort to prove that it does not exist, but that it is one of the good kind, if it does exist.

H. Rider Haggard says he writes novels merely for diversion. Well, a poor excuse is better than none, even in such a case as his.

Hetty Green's son has become an automobile enthusiast and is having two big racing cars built. The boy must have struck it rich somewhere on his own account.

The Washington preacher who says Americans are the most profane people on earth should enlarge his horizon by becoming acquainted with other portions of the country.

To the average circus patron who has gazed on the on-horned animal through the bars, the flesh of rhinoceros is just as tempting to the palate as the painted woodwork of his cage.

"Don't work for wages any longer than you have to," says Mr. Carnegie. The man who works for wages usually keeps close tab on the clock and does not violate Mr. Carnegie's injunction.

A member of the Colorado Legislature is reported to have refused $1,500 for his vote. Let the croakers who have been claiming that we send only cheap men to our legislatures know about this.

Mr. Eckels says there is too much clamor and too little thought. There is something in the idea, but Mr. Eckels will have to put it into the shape of a magazine article if he expects anybody to pay any attention to him.

In former years when the cattle growers were receiving better prices and consumers were getting cheaper meat, the by-products from which the packers now say they derive all their profits were, many of them, unutilized.

A man after having had a disagreeable experience with a lady who was able to wipe up the floor with him advises men to avoid marrying girls who are heavier than themselves. He ought in all fairness to have a royalty from the producers of anti-fat concoctions.

What is the true basis of lasting fame? Opinions differ. At the recent dinner of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of New York, Commander Peary said that he had lately discovered a ball, which he had thrown three hundred and six feet, and a pewter mug won in a college foot race. These trophies of achievement, he remarked, had made him a bigger man in the eyes of his two children than anything else he had ever done.

France has a financier at the head of its new ministry. Mons. Maurice Rouvier, the new premier, has been accustomed to say that "So long as the finances of a nation are sound there is nothing to fear." He served as minister of commerce in the Gambetta cabinet in 1881. In 1887 he became premier, selecting for himself the post of minister of finance. When his ministry fell he held the post of finance minister in the cabinets of 1889, 1890-1892, and in 1902 he again occupied the same position in the cabinet of Monsieur Combes. In his second premiership he retains the financial control. He is opposed to free trade, and was once opposed to an income tax, but is now working with the parliamentary majority to carry out the will of the people in levying the least objectionable income tax that he can devise.

Much could be written of the influence of women in securing the political liberties of the people. Women seem to desire freedom of opportunity for themselves and their sons. Even in Russia there have been about as many women as men in the revolutionary parties. It has remained for a woman to prove to the Russians, in a notable instance, that they need not submit to the oppression of the police. When Gen. Trepoft, now at the head of the St. Petersburg police, was in command of the police in Moscow, he closed, without due authority, a registry office for governesses. The woman who kept it would not submit to the ruin of her business, appealed to the courts for redress, and has obtained a verdict of forty thousand rubles in her favor, which Gen. Trepoft will have to pay. Russian correspondents say that it is only within a year that the people have discovered that the courts will assist them in redressing their grievances against an oppressive police.

Some men expect to acquire all their good habits in their second childhood. And one of the good habits long put off is thrift. Often this habit does come in second childhood. With appetites and passions burned out of the decaying mind and body, old men may find themselves freed from temptations and wrongly consider their condition due to ripened virtue. But thrift, like any other "virtue" forced upon one by nature, is apt to find its environment unhealthy and to curdle into penurious meanness. If thrift is to be wholesome and sweet it must be embraced while the mind and body are healthy and vigorous. Shakespeare causes one of his characters to say, "Thrift is blessing," and it has proved such to countless numbers of its adherents. Thrift is a composite quality. It embraces within itself nearly all of the great virtues. It implies industry, prudence, forethought, self-denial. It certainly has no relation to niggardiness or meanness. Some men would let their grandmothers starve to death for the sake of a few dollars. Such action cannot be called thrifty. A virtue carried to excess becomes a vice and is no longer a virtue. Thrift that does not take into partnership honesty and charity develops into covetousness and avarice. Thrift is the opposite of thriftlessness, prodigality, improvidence and waste. Nature is profuse and open-handed and lavish. But it is not wise to attempt imitation without understanding. While nature is plentiful and bountiful and generous with one hand, she is careful and prudent and economical with the other. Nature at times bathes the world in unstinted floods of sunlight. But no single ray is wasted. Every drop of the generous rain is gathered up again into the clouds. Even the dead plants and the leaves of the trees are utilized for the benefit of the next year's fruits and flowers. If we truly understand nature's open-handedness we may safely imitate. Thrift means better homes and better food, more comfort and enjoyment, less waste and less anxiety. It is possible that a large proportion of people have earnings so small that saving is impossible. But that is no reason for their being unthrifty. On the contrary, it is reason for their making the best and the most of the little they have for their health and true happiness.

The Irony of the Mat.

Terrors of Firing Line.

Only those who lie in the firing line and hear the constant screech of the shells as they cleave their terrible way through the air above know the true sounds of modern war. The whiplike smack of the bursting shell, the swirl of the scattering bullets are nothing to the mocking screech of these messengers of death as they pursue each other as if in competition to complete the awful object of their hideous mission. The whole welkin is discordant with their tumult; you feel the rush of misplaced air, splinters sing in your ears, the earth is in constant tremble with the violence of the discharge; you feel it pulsate against your cheek pressed to the moist mud of the parapet and then a bullet snaps the life blood of the comrade whose elbow has touched yours day and night for forty hours. There is a limit to human endurance in these straits.—World's Work.

The Brainy Editor.

"Why do you send back all my contributions?" asked Miss Yellowleaf in angry tones.

"My dear child," answered the editor, "it is an unalterable theory of mine that no one should write for the papers before she is at least 30 years of age."

He calculated that she would not bother him for about ten years at least.—Cleveland Leader.

In the Conservatory.

Dolly Nothingbut—No, Freddy, I cannot be your wife.

Freddy Fewscads—But you almost promised me a few minutes ago, while we were waiting.

Dolly Nothingbut—Oh! but you should not hold me to a promise made under pressure.—Cleveland Leader.

Of course you are all right, but your next-door neighbor needs a lot of reforming.

If you are troubled with insomnia go to sleep and forget it.

OPINIONS OF GREAT PAPERS ON IMPORTANT SUBJECTS

The Moving Habit.

A WOMAN in Ohio recently obtained a divorce on the ground that her husband had made her move forty-three times in nine years. An absurdly insignificant reason for dissolving the marriage relation it undoubtedly was, yet one can imagine what their "Wandering Jew" existence had meant to the woman and her children. Romance clusters about a place that has been lived in a century or more, but sentiment does not gather about a house lived in to-day and abandoned to-morrow. The family may have fitted in and out of splendid rooms, yet all the time they were homeless; for one must grow into a house and a neighborhood, and that is a slow process.

An old proverb declares that three removals are as bad as a fire; another that a rolling stone gathers no moss. Our ancestors took a long step toward civilization when they ceased to be nomads. Personal experience also reinforces a woman who objects to frequent removals, for most of the work falls upon her, and the small share of social life which a housemother can enjoy is taken from her at every journey.

But women, the home-makers, are seldom victims of the moving habit. They need no admonition beyond a hint that the habit, if lightly yielded to, will strengthen, and that it is as fatal to family happiness as it generally is to prosperity. Even if the children must go away, the home should be constant, that they may look back to it, through all the changes, as to a steady beacon.—Youth's Companion.

The Typewriter.

THE other day the thirtieth anniversary of an important event was quietly observed in New York by the presentation of a watch, suitably inscribed, to the first woman who adopted typewriting as a profession.

There is much that might have been put into that inscription. The typewriter is commonplace enough to-day, but in thirty years it has wrought one of the greatest advances in commercial history.

It has done more than marvelously facilitate business correspondence; it has admitted women to an important part in business life. A soulless little machine has done more toward gaining "women's rights" than had the arguments and agitation of centuries.

It is impossible to say whether the typewriter owes more to woman than woman owes to the typewriter, but it is certain that the business world owes a large debt to both. Together they have wrought wonders.

It is difficult to realize that only thirty years ago there were no women in the business offices. The sight of a petitioner on downtown streets, outside of the shopping districts, would have created a sensation. Now things would look peculiar without them. The typewriter has brought the great change. It has introduced women to all departments of business. And who can say that business has not been benefited?

Women are in many professions and many branches of business, but the profession of typewriter is the only one which was offered to women from the beginning.—Indianapolis Sun.

More Men Than Women in the World.

THE opinion is expressed in the latest bulletin of the Census Bureau of the United States that in the total population of the world there are several million more men than women. It is true that in Europe there are more females than males, but the men predominate in every other continent, as far as the population is counted with distinction of sex; and the same rule is believed to hold good in the large regions where the population can only be estimated.

In the United States the excess of males is greater than in any other land where it is known to exist. In our continental domain there are 1,638,321 more males than females. In other words, for every 100 females in the land there are about 102 males. The assumption is that the frequent wars in Europe or in the over-sea possessions of the European States may have something to do with the slight predominance of women in Europe, as contrasted with the United States.

NOTED WOMAN REVOLUTIONIST.

Katherine Bereshkovska, Who Spent 23 Years in a Siberian Prison.

One of the foremost leaders of the socialistic revolutionary movement in Russia is Katherine Bereshkovska, who is now in this country holding meetings among the Russians in the large cities and appealing for American sympathy in the struggle of her people for larger political rights. Few women have suffered the horrors, the anguish and the hardships which have been crowded into her life. The daughter of a nobleman, she was early imbued with the radical political and social beliefs of the revolutionists and was sent to Siberia for her advocacy of her principles. There she spent twenty-three years in exile. Four years ago she returned to Russia in Europe and became the treasurer of the revolutionary party. She traveled extensively, organizing the workingmen in the cities and the peasants in the country, circulating literature regarded as treasonable by the government and preaching wherever she could the doctrine that the Czar and the entire system of government must be swept away in order to give room for the growth of freedom and liberal institutions. To the Russian people she is known as "grandmother." She is an able speaker and a forcible writer, contributing largely to the revolutionary literature which finds its way into Russia by means of the underground mails. Mrs. Bereshkovska believes that in a few months the Russians will rise by the millions and sweep away the whole system of Czarism and bureaucracy. Before coming to this country she was a refugee in Sicily, for the dread of arrest and of another term of imprisonment had driven her out of Russia.

Not Looking for Work. "I see Jonsay has shifted from cigars to a pipe. Is he trying to save money?"

"No; he is too lazy to bite the ends off his cigars."

A woman grows wiser as she doesn't grow older.

It is not generally known," she said, hurriedly, "that there is a stain upon our record. One of the six became a corporal!"

"Still," she resumed, "the disgrace of it is lost in the record of the other five, who remained privates even until the surrender at Yorktown. I confess that once I did not appreciate this thing at its true value. But attendance at many gatherings of the Sons and Daughters, and hearing the speeches and listening to the records and other statements has convinced me that beyond doubt those five ancestors of ours were the only privates in the Revolutionary army!"—Youth's Companion.

Automobiles as Stage Coaches.

DISSATISFIED with the railroad rates and time tables, the proprietors of certain resorts in one of the mountain counties of New York State propose, it is said, to establish a line of automobile coaches to carry guests to and from their places for a distance of thirty miles or so. It is asserted that powerful touring machines will be used and that the time will be quicker than that scored by the ordinary accommodation train.

This suggests a new use for large automobiles, and it is not unlikely that within the next few years these vehicles may be employed more or less extensively in this manner, at least during the summer. There seems to be no reason why they cannot be utilized in some sections as rivals of both the railways and the trolleys. If an attempt to make high speed is made, however, the question at once arises as to the safety of the general public on the highway which they will traverse.

Railroads have their own rights of way. Trolley lines either follow their own routes through the fields or go along a part of the public road, leaving the rest clear for traffic. But, if in addition to the numerous automobiles that fly along for the pleasure of their individual owners, regular lines of these machines are eventually established for carrying passengers at a rapid rate over frequented routes, the need for stringent restrictions will be greater than ever. The farmer with his team and the driver with his horse and buggy have rights which must be upheld.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Women and the Suffrage.

WHenever a proposal to grant political equality to women is made in a State Legislature its women advocates are counteracted and outnumbered by stout and even passionate women opponents. Whenever we admit to the Sun a letter from a woman in behalf of woman suffrage we get so many letters from women protesting against the innovation that we regret having allowed the controversy to start. We are going through this experience now. If we gave full liberty to the discussion it would fill columns of our space continuously, and the great majority of the women controversialists would be on the side of the opposition.

Woman suffrage is now even less a question of practical politics than it was a generation ago, and it will never enter into politics as a considerable issue till the time comes, if it ever comes, when women themselves are united in asking for the suffrage. Who would be free, themselves must strike the blow; but the vast majority of women refuse to strike the blow, so far as concerns equality with men in the suffrage.—New York Sun.

THE COLOSSAL BRONTOSAURUS.

A MONSTER THAT EXISTED MILLIONS OF YEARS AGO.

This skeleton of a colossal brontosaurus was recently presented to public view in the American Museum of Natural History in New York. It has a length of 66 feet, 8 inches, but the species is believed in some instances to have attained a length of 80 feet and a height of 16 feet. The skeleton now on view was discovered in Wyoming, about three miles west of the famous Bone Cabin quarry, in 1897. The bones were removed within the next two years, and nearly five years have been devoted to freeing them from adhering material, and rearranging them so as to tell their story to the observer. Two-thirds of the original skeleton has been found. In completing the restoration, and especially in supplying the skull, use has been made of the remains of a related form, a mosasaurus, taken from the Bone Cabin quarry. The brontosaurus is believed to have lived on plants, and to have existed millions of years ago.

A Proud Distinction.

At the reception which followed a convention of Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, one handsome young woman was especially observed. She was not only beautiful, but she bore herself with dignity. Surely she must come of unusually distinguished lineage, reflected the young man from the West. Having obtained an introduction to her, he could not resist the temptation to ask some questions.

"Your Revolutionary family record," he said, tentatively, "is a remarkable one, I suppose?"

"Yes, it is," she replied, promptly. "My great-great-grandfather, a Massachusetts farmer, sent his six sons to Bunker Hill, all private soldiers!"

While the young man was looking at her, somewhat surprised, she glanced cautiously round, as if fearful of being overheard.

"It is not generally known," she

The Land Is Always There.

The farm land sales in McLean county, Illinois, on Wednesday numbered 165, the average price was $135 an acre, and the amount of money involved was $640,000, as against $497,000 a year before and $346,000 two years before.

The rising prices of land in the Illinois corn belt thus shown are typical of a change of attitude toward investments that is going on all over the United States.

The time was when the great majority of the American people regarded land as the most desirable of investments. Of course, this belief was largely due to the fact that forms of investment now familiar did not then exist. But it was partly due to a sound instinct whose workings have been obscured by the more brilliant attractions of corporation securities and which is now reasserting itself.

Of course, most of these purchases of land in this Illinois county were made by men who intend personally to work the farms. But undoubtedly some of them were made by men who are not now farmers and may never be—men who are active in business and the professions. Such men are buying productive farms because they feel that no other investment is so stable.

A man may be crowded out of his profession, his mercantile ventures may fail from causes wholly beyond his control, the corporations in which he has invested money may pass dividends and default on their bonds. But the returns from good land are as certain as the return of seed time and harvest.

Through business depressions and financial panics and political revolutions the land is always there and always yielding its fruits to labor. It is the surest form of investment because it is the foundation of all wealth.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Take Care of the Farm Team.

The farm team during the busy season should be taken care of properly. When taking a drive to town don't rush the farm horses. If the farmer is without a driving team or horse, he should not forget that fast driving on the road means a loss of flesh and is a hard strain on the work horses. It pays to keep the harness adjusted, oiled and made pliable at all times to prevent sore shoulders and galls. Keep it so adjusted as to fit the horse it is intended for. Not only should the harness be adjusted properly, but the farm implements as well. See to it that the clevis and whiffletrees are doing their work at a proper angle and that all implements are being run smoothly so as to reduce the draft as much as possible.

When a hot day's work is over, it is a good plan to wash the parts covered by the harness, especially the shoulders and back, with cold salt water. Look well to the feet and see that they are kept clean; if there is dirt lodged in the hoofs remove it, and keep the feet looking clean.

The above suggestions, if carried out, will have much to do in keeping the work team comfortable and in getting the most out of them.

Farm Notes.

You cannot keep the place too clean. A little kerosene will brighten a rusty plow.

It is the solids in a cow's milk that determines her value.

A good time to prune trees is just after they have leaved out.

In breeding be careful not to drop utility points to get standard.

Does the insurance policy permit you to run the incubator in the house?

Cockle is said to be poisonous. Too much of it is apt to kill the fowls.

The value of the manure depends more upon the feed than upon the animal.

Plant early garden truck only in ground in first-class condition and well fertilized.

Spring cleaning should apply to the barn and cellar as well as to the rooms of the house.

Give house plants as much light as possible during the day and darkness with a lower temperature at night.

Scatter wood ashes in the orchard; they contain the properties most needed to make healthy trees and good fruit.

Any attempt to grow something that is not well adapted to the soil increases the cost of production and lessens the profit.

Tree roots extend as far as the limbs extend and sometimes further, on this account manure should be scattered broadcast.

The greater the variety of good grasses in the pasture, the better for the thrift of the stock that feeds there. An especial advantage with mixed grasses is that they give a longer season of pasture.

In order to grow small fruits successfully, it is essential to have a fertile soil. There is little danger of its being too rich. Secure healthy and vigorous plants. Be careful not to allow the roots to become dry in transplanting. Give clean, thorough cultivation.

Circular Stock Barn. The accompanying ground floor and cross section plans are for a circular barn 72 feet in diameter. The basement walls are of concrete, 8 feet high and 12 inches thick. The posts of the superstructure are 16 feet high. The frame can all be constructed by splicing 2-inch planking. The basement provides room for 20 cows, 16 horses and one box stall. Other box stalls may be built near the silo, which occupies the space in the center of the building. The silo is 12 feet in diameter inside, and 35 feet high. The wall of the silo is 18 inches thick for the bottom, and one foot thick the remaining 27 feet. The jog in the silo walls provides a rest for the joists of the barn floor. The silo will hold sufficient corn silage for 20 cows for about 170 days. The small squares shown in the ground floor plan in the feed room in front of the cows indicate the position of the purline posts. The horse stable carries the remaining purline posts. If a silo is not desired, the center of the basement could be used for a root house, which might be made 20 feet across. A rectangular barn of the same capacity as this one could be built more cheaply.

Tomatoes Sold in England.

Consul Stephens asserts that, during last August, there were one hundred thousand packages of tomatoes shipped weekly into English ports, bringing an average of two shillings per package. He states further that, although the American tomato is recognized as the equal of any other, if not superior to it, yet the American product is not to be found in the English markets, but that the whole amount imported comes from France and Italy. Here is a broad hint to the American farmer for his surplus summer crop, and perhaps to the shippers of early vegetables in the South, who might send, with great profit, some of their early spring vegetables, particularly the tomato, to the London market.—American Agriculturist.

Simple Bag Holder.

Take a firkin. Take out the bottom, drive three wire nails from the inside, three inches from the bottom, to hang the bag on. Make a hole three inches from top large enough to hang on nail, then drive nail in post on side of barn, hang up the firkin, fasten bag to it, and you are ready to shovel in the grain.

Ration for Horses.

Experimental feeding in the United States army has resulted in establishing the following ration of forage for horses: Twelve pounds of oats and fourteen pounds of hay every day, with a salted bran mash twice a week. This may be the best way to feed an army horse, but a shipper who wants to put a high stepper in condition for the market usually feeds him all he will eat of a steam-cooked mixture made up of one part cracked corn, one part of oats, two parts bran and one-half part whole flaxseed. An experienced feeder says this ration,

Andrew Lang Scores Dogs.
There is not one of the seven deadly sins of which the dog is not habitually guilty, says Andrew Lang in the Illustrated Kennel News, and I am unaware of a single redeeming feature in his repulsive character.

The self-consciousness and vanity of dogs might disgust even a minor poet. I have known a collie—certainly a very handsome collie—to pass days in contemplating his own image in the glass. I know a dog dandy which actually makes eyes, being conscious that he possesses these organs very large, brown and decorative.
"The dog is not brave. The dog is not faithful. It needs a great deal of fidelity in man to cling as he does to the dog, licking, as it were, the paw (the muddy paw) which tramples him. Who has not seen a dog morally corrupt a family—reducing them to the slaves of impulses? Tip wants to take a walk! Tip wants to go out of the door—then he wants to come in again; then he appears at the window and scratches; then he fancies the most comfortable armchair and ousts a jaded and middle-aged man of letters.

His One Opportunity.

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the strongest Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla. The liver will quickly respond, and so will the bowels.

A book of exceptional importance on eastern matters is "The White Peril in the Far East," by Sidney L. Gulick. By long residence in Japan and mental equipment, Dr. Gulick is considered an authority on eastern questions. The forthcoming volume presents the plight of the backward yellow races, threatened, as they are, by white aggression. The author puts forward a novel suggestion that peace will never come to the East until England or the United States, singly or jointly, establishes a protectorate of eastern Siberia or Manchuria, and makes of it a buffer State like Switzerland, and Holland in Europe.

SCROFULA A Disease We Inherit

The tainted blood of ancestors lays upon the shoulders of innocent offspring, untold suffering by transmitting to them, through the blood, that blighting disease, Scrofula; for in nearly every instance the disease can be traced to some family blood trouble, or blood-kin marriage which is contrary to the laws of nature. Swelling, ulcerating glands of the neck, catarrh, weak eyes, sores, abscesses, Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never fests itself. — The poison transmitted through the blood pollutes and weakens that health-sustaining fluid and in place of its nutritive qualities fills the circulation with scrofulous matter and tubercular deposits, often resulting in consumption. A disease which has been in the family blood for generations, perhaps, or at least since the birth of the sufferer, requires constitutional treatment. S. S. S. is the remedy best fitted for this. It cleanses the blood of all scrofulous and tubercular poisons, makes it rich and pure and under the tonic effects of this great blood medicine the general health improves, the symptoms all pass away, there is a sure return to health, the disease is cured permanently while posterity is protected. Book on the blood and any advice wished, furnished by our physicians, without charge.

Effects of Prosperity.
In the six years of the country's greatest prosperity, from 1897 to 1903, average prices of breadstuffs advanced 65 per cent, meats 23.1 per cent, dairy and garden products 50.1 per cent, and clothing 24.1. All these were products of the farmer and stockman who profited more than any other class of the community by these advances. The miner benefited 42.1 per cent, by that advance in the average price of metals. The only decrease in the average prices of commodities in that period was in railway freight rates, which decreased from .798 per ton mile in 1897 to .763 in 1903, a loss of 4.1 per cent. The report of the interstate commerce commission shows that the average increase in the pay of railroad employees in that period was a trifle above 8.5 per cent.

THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1905.

What will the visit of that congressional delegation profit Alaska? Most of these men are prominent in the councils of the Nation, and may be of great benefit to us, if they will. But this is not the first delegation to come among us—some being sent at government expense—and the district does not appear to have reaped very much benefit from them, mainly, we think, because of a diversity of opinions formed while passing hurriedly along and gleaning a few pointers from carpet-bag officials, many of whom have no interests in common with the people of the district, being here solely for what there is in it. These are what poison the minds of legislators against us. We are always pleased to have visitors come amongst us, and extend to them the right hand of welcome and fellowship; but if they come to glean reliable information as to conditions they should remain for weeks and glean their knowledge from personal observation.

In Senator Piles, of Washington, it is said that Alaska has a warm friend. We are pleased to know it. Alaska has had many friends, but when it came to the pinch they generally have "important business from constituents" to demand their attention. That is the reason the SENTINEL has clamored for a delegate in congress clothed with authority from an organized territory in Alaska. In other words we want to become the constituents of some good, live, energetic man on the floors of congress to champion our rights. Any section of the country whose value of exports is nearly $9,000,000 in excess of its imports is entitled to this. Nevertheless, if Senator Piles will give his aid in bringing about this condition, the greater portion of Alaskans will take off their hats to him and also to any others who will join him in a move of emancipation of 35,000 Alaskans.

It looks at times as if republicans are too glibly to retain party organization. Down at Portland, Oregon, a town with a republican majority of 5,000, Harry Lane, democrat, was elected over George H. Williams, republican, by 1,000 plurality. And it was that town of republican moralists that is responsible for a democratic governor in a state that is republican by at least 20,000. With the election of Lane as mayor, it gives the democrats the two principal offices and virtually control of the state. This dampness naturally makes a fellow who has assisted in making the state republican feel like kicking himself and every other republican. With the Chamberlains, the Lane's, the Heney's and Mugwumps, Oregon is going hopelessly into the democratic camp.

It is getting well along in the season to hope for the improvement of the Dry Straits this year. But all the towns in Southeastern Alaska, as well as all outside shippers should bend their energies toward getting the matter before congress at its next session. An improvement that would give a good, safe channel for all hours, day or night; that will shorten the distance an hour's run for the swiftest vessels; that would save to the government millions of dollars in the construction and maintaining, must surely be made sooner or later, and it seems to us the sooner the better. This is a move in which the steamship companies particularly should interest themselves in these days when rapid transit is desired.

The naval engagement in the Strait of Korea practically settled the war between Japan and Russia, says the Skagway Alaskan. The goddess of wisdom and war has decreed that Japan shall have the victory. Russia's last hope for success went to Davy Jones' locker with the battleships and cruisers of Rojestsvensky's fleet. One of two courses is now open to Russia. One is to sue for peace at once and accept the best terms it can get from the conquering enemy. The other is a gradual retreat from Manchuria and the continuation of a nominal warfare so far in the interior away from the Japanese base of supplies that the cost in treasure and life will be small. By that means the payment of a large indemnity in money might be avoided, and Russia might make a pretense of permitting the war finally to itself die out. In the latter event, Russia would, of course, lose in addition to every item in dispute which resulted in the war, Sakhalin island and the maritime provinces of Siberia, including Vladivostok and an outlet to the Pacific. All things considered it is apparent that the sooner Russia can get peace the less will be the cost of defeat and the less drastic the humiliation.

Now that the tourist season is here and the first load of eastern sightseers will make a tour of southeastern Alaska next week, says the Record-Miner of the 7th inst., it is to be hoped that the steamers carrying tourists this year will be able to run nearer Muir glacier than the past two seasons. Muir glacier is one of the principal points of greatest favor with the tourist, and this year, on account of the Lewis and Clark fair, the tourist travel will probably exceed that of the past two years, and all will want to see and photograph that great mass of snow and ice. For many years the boats loaded with excursionists were run directly up to the glacier, and those that were inclined to do so were permitted to land and make photographs and other observations of the ice field. Enormous pieces of ice would fall from the front of the glacier and drop into the front of the bay. Of more recent years, however, the great ice factory has been so active that it has been impossible for boats to get within several miles of the glacier, and this feature of the trip had to be abandoned. C. L. Andrews, formerly deputy collector of customs at Skagway, but now of Eagle, in company with W. H. Case, made a trip last year to the glacier in an open boat, and he announces that the glacier has lost its size and grandeur, and is receding at a rapid rate. The face has moved back about three miles in the past four years, and in that time the glacier has lost about ten square miles in area. This rapid recession is said to have dated from the fall of 1889, when the vicinity was visited by an earthquake. Mr. Andrews is of the opinion that the end of the Muir as a tidal water glacier is near at hand.

The Ketchikan Journal is a trifle sarcastic. It says: "When the Congressional party reaches Ketchikan who will be at the steamer to meet them and show them the city?"

Now if we had a mine owners' club or even the Wrangell Chamber of Commerce—but this is Ketchikan. The Journal boys have a right to get sour, however. To attempt to run a live town without a nucleus about which the people can concentrate their energies, is a good deal like building a wagon wheel without a hub. Wrangell people observed this fact some time ago, organized a Chamber, and ever since has been pulling ahead nicely. Keep pegging away at 'em, boys; you know perseverance and the necessary condiments will work wonders.

Each retail liquor applicant from towns where there is municipal government, must circulate their own petition and present it to the clerk of the federal court with a majority of the white citizens residing within two miles of their place of business signed. This places each and every retail liquor dealer upon his own bottom and therefore any objectionable place will have to confront an outraged community before they will be granted license. The notices to this effect are now in the hands of the local dealers and several lists will be circulated this week.—Juneau Dispatch.

Keep in mind the fact that there is no good and valid reason why this section should not have a paper pulp mill, if the people will but pull together on the subject. We have timber in abundance of first grade; no better water and water power is to be found, and the shipping facilities are A 1. What more can any community offer and guarantee?

How about that Juneau-Ketchikan cable line?
